

LINDAMOOD SCHOOL is a one room school located on the grounds of The Settlers Museum of Southwest Virginia at Groseclose, Virginia. The restored school is representative of an era when such schools were prevalent. Smyth County had 62 such schools in 1894.

The school has been equipped with homemade wooden desks, books of the time like McGuffey's Readers and Spellers, wood burning stove, dinner pails, water bucket and dipper, homemade lye soap and a hickory switch for discipline. The outhouses have been reconstructed and are functional.

19 June 2008

Two other checks:

William Boudeman $20⁰⁰

Thomas Dillow $30⁰⁰

Settlers Museum
P.O. Box 18
Atkins, VA 24311
20 JUN 2008 PM

Mr. Bookman and Cht Members,
With grateful appreciation
we acknowledge your very generous $600⁰⁰ check to Settlers Museum of Southwest Virginia. What a wonderfully unexpected surprise! You can be sure the museum will use the money wisely.

Thank you.

Dyn House
Director - Settlers Museum

Irene Owens, volunteer

Paul - 6.24.08

This is a nice thank-you note from Settlers Museum
for our donation.
Maybe material
for newsletter?

-Kael